

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515-4602

July 9, 2018

Dear Guests,

Thank you for inviting me to Monday's "Preparing for a Climate Changed Future: Navigating the Impacts of our Military and Coastal Communities" panel discussions. I regret I am unable to attend.

As a Congressman representing the people and interests of Virginia's 2nd District, I am inherently aware of the dangers climate change and sea-level rise pose to Hampton Roads, the area's infrastructure, housing, industries, businesses and military installations.

The country is extremely lucky to have two respected, powerhouse entities like the College of William & Mary and The Center for Climate and Security come together to discuss new ideas and ways for our communities, states and the military to mitigate the risks on coastal military installations and the surrounding communities.

Remember, as a member of the bipartisan Climate Solutions Caucus in Congress, I am with you every step of the way to find solutions to protect our environment and our national security.

Thank you, again, for your invitation. Please, stay in contact with me by signing up for my e-newsletter at www.taylor.house.gov to receive regular updates from Washington D.C., and by joining me on Facebook and Twitter.

Respectfully yours,

Scott Taylor
Member of Congress
